UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

The Prussian Extradition Case-The Charge of Forgery against Philip Henrich.

The further inquiry into the charge preferred against Philip Henrich, late secretary of the Rhenish Railway of Cologne, in Prussia, of having committed forgery to the amount of 8,000 thalers, was resumed yesterday, at half-past one o'clock, before Commissioner White.

Mr. H. D. Lapaugh, counsel in the United States for the Prussian government, conducted the proseition. Baron Guido von Grabow, the Prussian Consul Gen-

Baron Guido von Grabow, the Prussian Consul General, was also present.

Mr. Charles Wehle defended the prisoner.

The facts have been already reported very fully in the Herath. The case on behalf of the Prussian government has rested, and the whole of the sitting of yesterday was taken up with an argument by Mr. Wehle, who moved, on the part of the prisoner, that the compaint should be dismissed on the following grounds:—First, That neither the oral testimony nor the documentary evidence produced by the Prussian government shows that any crime whatever has been committed by any person entiting the government of Frussia to domand an extradition under the treaty of 1852. Second, That neither the oral nor the written testimony shows that the defendant has committed the crime of forgery, or of uttering forged papers, or any other crime specified in the treaty of 1852. Counsel then proceeded to state that, as to the alleged confessions by the defendant, with respect to the crime imputed to him, they were made by the defendant while in the castody of the officer holding him, and ought to the prisoner, which he might have well considered as threats, and therefore they ought not to be received. Neither the words of the prisoner, one the sense in which he used them, amount to a confession of the crime he is charged with. The evidence as to the words used was;—v1 cannot say I was so much unguity as careless; and these words could not by any possibility be toriured into a confession of a forgery, or of uttering forged paper. The prisoner emphatically denied that he used even those words, but asserts that it was the officer who told him. "You probably were more careless than guilty," wheremore in the defendant was the officer of the former answered, "I cannot say that I was either careless or guilty." Mr. Wehls then applied himself to the documentary proof, contending that it was incomed to the considered to make out a case of forgery against the prisoner.

If Mr. Weble was going to arrue that, because he prisoner had declared his intention of becoming a titzen of the United States, he must inform him that he ould not decide any such question. His duty was minely to decide whether there was probable cause for coiding the accused upon the present charge. The ommissioner then asked Mr. Weble if he bad any witcess to call. ness to call.

Mr. Wehle then asked for an adjournment till Monday witnesses.

The Commissioner observed that the case had been several times adjourned since the 2d of April.

It was then arranged that there should be an adjournment till next Saturday, and that if Mr. Wehle was not then able to produce witnesses for the defence, the summing up should be concluded.

SUPERIOR COURT-PART I.

Damages against the National Steamship Company for the Loss of a Passenger's Bag-

Prances Tolano vs. The National Steam Navigation Com-pany.—The plaintiff in this action arrived in the bay of New York as a steerage passenger on board the Helvotia, from Liverpool, one of the defendant's steamers, on the 29th October last. Cholera having broken out among the emigrants during the voyage, the vessel was quarantined, and the passengers who escaped the contagion, among whom were the plaintiff and her family, were transferred to the hospital ship Illinois. After remaining a short time at the hospital ship they were sent to the emigrant depot at Castle Garden, and during he transit hither the plaintiff lost a trunk, which she averred contained valuable wearing apparel, glassware and jewelry, besides the sum of £109 in British gold. On leaving the Illinois, the passengers were put on board one tug, and their baseages into another, and the last time the plaintiff's trunk was seen was when it was being transferred from the Illinois to the tug. She brought an action in this court yesterday to recover $4,000, the value of the contents of the trunk, which she charged the defendants with having converted to their own use.

The defence dealed the probability of a steerage passenger having such variable property, and alleged that no freight was paid on it as merchandles, and also claimed there was no proof to show they had converted it to their own use. sferred to the hospital ship Illinois. After remi

The Judge charged the jury that the company were liable as common extriers to a cortain extent. Passengers could recover for the loss of necessary and ordinary wearing apparel, and of sufficient money to pay for travelling expenses, if stored in their trunks and the trunks were lost; and it was for the jury to determine how much of the articles which plaintiff had lost would come under that list. nder that list.

The jury brought a verdict for the plaintiff for $2,800

the Arrest of the Chief Ghoul.

James McDermott vs. W. H. This probably aroused their ire, as on Wednesday evening last, while Mr. McDermout was superintending some repairs being done to the building just above the abode of the ghouls he was arrested, as he alleges, on a charge made against him by the chief of the fraternity of keeping a disorderly house. He states that this charge was a mere pretext to have him arrested, as he would not be arrested without a warrant except on such a charge. He was taken under arrest to the station house, kept there during the night, and brought before Justice Bodge in the morning, who at once discharged him. The plaintiff having entered a suit for $10,000 damages against the defendant—the alleged head of the Ghouls—for take imprisement, yesterday moved for an order for his arrost, whice the Judge granted, and it has been piaced in the Sheriff's hands.

Counsel for libellant moved that the claim be stricken out. The following is Judge Benedict's opinion:—

I'de not conceive that this court has any power, by any form of process, to require an officer of a State court to submit himself, and with him the tribunal which he represents, to the jurisdiction of this court, and I greatly doubt the power of the Sheriff, by making himself a party to proceedings or of the Sheriff, by making himself a party to proceedings for ending in a State tribunal before this court for adjudication as to their validity, it is not seen how the decree of this court adverse to the legality of the proceedings pending in the State tribunal should such decree be made upon the issue sought to be raised by the Sheriff, could be rendered effective to stay the action of the Sheriff, could be rendered effective to stay the action of the Sheriff, could be rendered effective to stay the action of the Sheriff, could be rendered effective to stay the action of the Sheriff, could be rendered effective to stay the action of the Sheriff as minister of the law by virtue of proceedings pending in a tribunal of the State, in order that this court may stay its hand and allow the proceedings to seek the sheriff as minister of the law by virtue of proceedings pending in a tribunal of the State, in order that this court may stay its hand and allow the proceedings to the Sheriff as minister of the law by virtue of proceedings pending in a tribunal of the Stat

Before Commissioner Newton.

United States vs. Thomas Kennedy.—Defendant in this case was charged with having kept the distillery in Atlantic, near Classon avenue, closed against the Inspec-tor. Revenue Inspector Robert Harding was examined and testified that he visited the premises in question on the 19th ult., and found the doors, gates and windows the 10th ult., and found the doors, gates and windows closed, and smoke issuing from the smokepipe. He heard parties at work inside and knecked at the office door and at the gate, but as no one appeared he left the place. Witness again v.sited the place on the following day and found the office door and the gate locked as before. He thereupon knocked at the door and was admitted. Shorely after suarise on the 12th lest, witness visited the premises a third time, and on tooking through a crack in the fence, saw a truck loaded with barrels and a cart about to be loaded. When the truck came out he found the barrels marked "Jacob Bulwinkle, Inspector; Hiram Cummings, Distiller, 1867." He caused the truck to be unloaded, and shortly afterwards the cart came out empty. Witness went into the yard with a policeman and found the barrels therein, also empty, but wet about the bungs. He looked into the distillery and it seemed as if it had been running over night. The books of the establishment could not be found when asked for. At about eleven A. M. the same day he returned to the distillery with Deputy Collector Daily and the Marabal, when he saw the defendant for the first time. Workmen were sitting about the place doing nothing, and the marks on the barrels in the yard had been effected.

The Commissioner committed them to jail in default of bail in the sum of $1,000 each, to await an examination on Monday.

The net receipts of the city for the year ending March 1, 1867, were $2,738,735, the expenditures $2,471,355, leaving a balance in the Treasury of $262,380. He also advocates the condemnation of all property fronting the river, from Main street to Mill creek, for wharfage purposes, and recommends an increase of the regular and sautiary police forces. spirits, and thus prevent the mistakes—if they may be called so—that some officials are liable to commit when measuring spirits.

The meter measures the whiskey as it passes from the tail pipe of the worm. Where low wines are produced a separate meter is to be placed at the double. The indication on the register of the low wine meter is to be deducted from the indication of the high wine meter, and the difference shown will be the amount upon which the distiller is to pay tax. In addition to this there is an instrument attached that records exactly the percent of proof, and is said to be very ingenious, and incapable of being tampered with. The new meter will come into use on the 18th of May, when every distillery is obliged to be provided with one, under a beavy ponalty. As the new meter measures the liquor accordingly as it is distilled it is to be hoped that the chances of cheating the government will be lessened, and that there will be fewer "whiskey frauda" in this city and neighborhood to report in future.

Three More Distilleries Selzed.
The following zeizeres, made by Deputy Collector
Dailey and Inspector Cochen, yesterday, were reported at the office of the United States District Attorney,

Brooklyn, yesterday:—
The distillery of Patrick Muriagh & Co., at No. 207

Water street, was seized on the ground of false entries having been made upon the books. About 17,500 gallons of beer, or about 2,500 gallons of molasses, were found freshly set, while the books only showed that 900 gallons had been put in mash up to the date of the seizure, the last entry having been made on the 10th instant. The officers also found an entire set of steneti plates used for marking, as follows:—"James Marrin, as United States Inspector; John Thomas, distiller, United States bonded warehouse, tax paid." This brand is prenounced a bogus one.

James O'Brien's distillery, in Graham street, was visited by the officers early yesterday morning, who found all the doors and windows closed. They broke open one of the doors and found two men at work inside filling up barrels with spirits by means of a rubber hose leading through the floor from the cisters room. They found five hundred gallons of molasses in course of fermentation, while the distillery book showed that only one nundred and eighty gallons had been put in mash since January I. The distillery was accordingly placed under seizure.
